A kitchen safari THE first question people ask when you say you have been on safari in Africa is: "What was the food like?" They don't want to know if you have seen a leopard or a rhino but, more pressingly, did the safari camps have an espresso machine? Catering for guests at Tanzania's camps is a logistical miracle, writes Graeme Blundell

Delivery & Pickup Options - 22 reviews of Safari Kitchen "Maaan I won't lie. First I was skeptical but the smell as I passed by was over powering and I stopped. I'm extremely glad I did though. I had a combo plate so I could see if I liked the chicken or beef better and honestly they were both tender and moist. The rice had its own descriptive taste and I love the taste of the homemade sauce.
