Co-narcissists are approved of and rewarded when they perform well in their role, but, otherwise, they're corrected and punished. Among these two, the co-narcissist are the ones that are more open and prone to therapy, simply because the last thing a narcissist would want to do is talk about his/her deficiencies. Co-narcissist, on the other hand, are more ready to accept the blame and responsibility and work on their struggling mental health. Three Types of Responses

The problem with the Narcissist - Heidi K. Wiedemann

Narcissists have low underlying self-esteem (see Recognize a Narcissist), but they address this problem by over-compensating; they present a mask (see Narcissism: Behind the Mask), an entirely false image of themselves to the world designed to engineer a constant flow of admiration from others.
