S.I. coronavirus diary: Gaming out my trip to the supermarket

My trip to the supermarket # Usually I get groceries once a week, and there's nothing surprising about it, certainly nothing that's blogworthy. Today it's different. It was time to go, and I dreaded it. But I had a mask, and they have sanitizing wipes at the front door, and I had read all about how to do it safely, so I went. A few notes.

On a special trip to the supermarket, a young boy helps his mom buy what they need. There are meats, fruits, and vegetables to put in the shopping cart; soap and toilet paper, too. But the most important ingredients are those needed to bake a birthday cake. Children love to help out at the grocery store.

At the Supermarket by Anne Rockwell - Goodreads

Walking around the supermarket is excruciating. The air conditioning fan going on is overwhelming. The thunder in thunderstorms is pretty bad too. If it's low frequency, it's shaking that ear drum. My guess is the culprit is a brain tumor, as it came on suddenly Monday morning last week when I woke up.
